The Fear Haunted House at Navy Pier presents Zombie Containment, Oct 2 – Nov 2

Chicago’s ONLY floating haunted house on a barge in Lake Michigan

CHICAGO – This Halloween season, we double dare you to come aboard Chicago's only floating haunted house! The Fear Haunted House returns to Navy Pier with the all-new attraction Zombie Containment from October 2 through November 2.

Located on a barge in Lake Michigan just north of the Landshark Beer Garden on the Pier’s east end, Zombie Containment is produced by Zombie Army Productions, the producers of the famous Statesville Haunted Prison.

Completely rebuilt, Zombie Containment is a ground-breaking concept that incorporates a blend of horror and comedy as you slowly discover the zombies may not be quite as contained as you're initially led to believe.

Following a zombie outbreak that devastated the nation, zombies are now held within a series of shipping containers on a barge where they are studied and researched by Merikorp Industries. In the interest of full transparency, Merikorp is inviting you to tour Zombie Containment, their facility and barge of the undead, right here in Chicago.

Before you come face to face with zombies, choose your tour based on your fear tolerance: nighttime High Scare or daytime Low Scare.

Zombie Containment is a High Scare interactive haunt in the evening designed for ages 13 to adult and a Low Scare, lights on experience during the day.

The Fear Haunted House at Navy Pier presents Zombie Containment runs Thursdays through Sundays plus Columbus Day, from October 2 through November 2. The schedule is as follows:
